3. Itinerary

Everest Mountain Flight short Itinerary:

Morning at a given time by 6 a.m or 7 a.m. having early breakfast or later after the flight, where High Route Adventure staff will receive you for the short drive to Kathmandu domestic airport. After checking in with security formalities, then board in respective airlines either Yeti Airlines, Buddha Airlines, or Simrik Air. All flights operate all around the year, weather permitting, where spring, autumn, or fall to winter are the best times especially spring and autumn with the pre-winter months of December. Onboarding, the flight attendant will take care of, if you need some refreshment, as the aircraft lifts above the Kathmandu airport facing the outmost scenery of Kathmandu valley and the city. As engine lifts higher above 5,000 m to 6, 000 m or in between 20, 000 to 25,000 feet, almost on the level of some lesser snow mountain range. The aircraft heads east where Mt. Everest is located with Lhotse, Cho-Oyu, and Mt. Makalu in a further North-East direction. Enjoy the unparalleled panorama of Himalayan snow-capped mountains with the closest views of Mt. Everest, a black rocky pyramid-shaped with ice and snow topping that lies ahead of you, as you face from the window of the plane. No need to worry, as passengers on both sides of the plane seats will have a great opportunity to view 360° wide-angle series of peaks with clear views of Mt. Everest. The plane then turns west to land at Kathmandu airport, where you will be honored with your respective airlines' certificates in appreciation and take Part in glorious morning activities on Everest Mountain Flight.
